Gov. Perdue's Statement on the 2012 Democratic National Convention Coming to Charlotte

"Today's decision is fantastic news for North Carolina regardless of your political party. A national political convention is a keystone event that will boost North Carolina's economy, while showcasing Charlotte and our state to the nation and the world. What they will see when they get here is what hundreds of businesses already know – Charlotte's smart investments in infrastructure, cultural attractions and amenities have produced a climate perfect for work and play."
